JOHN HAUP T

John H. Haupt, who financed construction of the house at 113 E. Oglethorpe Avenue (lot 13, Franklin Ward), was born in St. Augustine, Florida about August, 1780. In 1802, at the age of twenty-two, he married Rebecca Lavender of Savannah. (He had moved to Savannah sometime previous to his marriage, probably with his presumed father, John Haupt, a baker.) As a young man, Haupt was quite a character, defaulting on taxes several times before running for Receiver of the Tax Returns in 1811, a position for which he was defeated. This defeat marked the beginning of a somewhat less than successful career running for public office. He ran for coroner of the county in 1828 and in 1834 and was defeated both times. At one point, he was elected as district justice of the peace, running without opposition. In the "behind-the-scenes" political world, Haupt was more successful, being a leader in the Union and States Rights Association during the 1830's.

Outside the political arena, Haupt was leader in the Savannah community. He was the secretary pro tempem of the Fire Engine Company No. 1 in 1810 and in 1825 was a "founding father" of the Savannah Fire Company. He remained a leader in the latter organization until 1853 when it was dissolved. He was also a member of the Savannah Association of Mechanics for a short while and a leader of the Savannah Poor House and Hospital for about ten years. In 1825, Haupt was appointed to the Board of Health from Greene Ward, a position which he held for many years. He served on various committees under the City Council. He was a member and leader of the German Lutheran Church. Haupt was appointed by City Council as Keeper of the Powder magazine, a position which he also retained for several years. He also served on several Grand Juries.

In his personal life, not too much is known about John Haupt. As mentioned above, Haupt married Rebecca Lavender in 1802. They had several children. She died in 1827 and he re-married in 1829 to Ann M. Wesner. She died in 1840. By 1850 (exactly when could not be determined), he had married again, this time to an "Eliza" from Charleston (her last name could not be determined). Throughout his life, Haupt had more than ten children and at his death eight were alive. He died in November 1859 at the age of seventy-nine.
JOHN HAUT (1780-1859)

1793—John Haupt signed a notice as an heir of George Bollinger. On November 8, 1793, part of Bollinger's property was to be sold. On the lot was a "good dwellinghouse, kitchen, bakehouse, and oven, and, also, a good well of water."1

1833-A notice to the members of Lutheran Church was signed by John Haupt, secretary. 31

1834-The results of the election for coroner of Chatham County on January 6:

1834-John Haupt was appointed by City Council as keeper of the magazine. 33

1834-N. B. Sisson (of the Sloop John Chevalier) appointed Haupt as his attorney for a business venture. 34

1834-John Haupt was appointed to a committee of the Union and States Rights Association to nominate a ticket for the General Assembly of Georgia. 35
1834—John Haupt was appointed to the Board of Health from Greene Ward. 36

1834—John Haupt, Jr. made a toast "Jackson and Union forever" at the Union and States Rights Association's Independence Day celebration. 37

*This association was a local subsidiary of the Democratic Party. It was against nullification in the 1832 controversy and, as can be seen, supported Jackson.

1835—John Haupt was re-elected by City Council as keeper of the powder magazine. 38

1835—John Haupt was re-appointed to the Board of Health from Greene Ward. 39

1835—John Haupt was appointed to a nominating committee for candidates for the General Assembly from the Union and States Rights Association. 40

1836—John Haupt was re-elected as keeper of the powder magazine by City Council. 41

1836—John Haupt served on a Grand Jury which investigated the problem of liquor retailers who sell liquor to negro slaves which gives "an inducement to theft and intoxication." Recommended was a regulation of such trade without a ticket presented by the negro slave from the owner.

The Grand Jury also recommended the construction of a new jail since the cost for upgrading the old one would be one-third the cost of a new building. 42

1836—John Haupt elected to the Board of Health from Greene Ward. 43

1836—John Haupt was on the nominating committee for the Union and States Rights Association to nominate a ticket for the General Assembly. 44

1852—John Haupt was elected clerk and treasurer of the Savannah Fire Company.

1853—The Savannah Fire Company went out of existence. John Haupt was secretary at the time.

There was a controversy over an attempt to unite the Savannah Fire Company with the Oglethorpe Fire Department. City Council passed an ordinance which the former felt "struck a blow at our corporate position" and favored the Oglethorpe Fire Department over itself.

1859—John Haupt died of "debility" at the age of seventy-nine on November 19.

1865—Eliza Haupt, the third wife of John Haupt, died of tuberculosis at the age of seventy-two on February 7.

REFERENCES EXAMINED BUT NOT USED

Because a major problem in this study was to distinguish between the various people named John Haupt, almost anything which had any mention of the name or any similar name was used. (Four people with the name of John Haupt lived during the time of John H. Haupt, the subject of this study.)

As a guide for future researchers, the entries in the various indices (1763-1840) and digests (1850-1859) for the Savannah newspapers which did not refer specifically to John Haupt, or some derivation of that name, usually were examined but not used except in a general way (e.g., Haupt's children). This researcher feels that they are useful for orientation purposes but not specifically relevant to the topic.

When searching for a modern descendant, some of the estate records served only to eliminate certain routes. The records in this category are:

Ann M. B. Buntz (File No. B-424)
Henry C. Buntz (File No. B-876)
Eliza B. Seyle (File No. S-650)
George S. Frierson (File No. F-351)
Jesse M. Frierson (File No. F-394).

The 1850 Federal Census was scrutinized carefully. The household of Henry Haupt (No. 260) was not used; however, the households of Samuel B. Haupt (No. 485) and James L. Haupt (No. 1459) may be helpful in further work.

The Savannah City Directory (1867-1880) were examined but were not useful.

All the deeds at the Chatham County Courthouse from 1800-1834 concerning John Haupt were examined in an attempt to determine his occupation but they proved useless for that purpose.
