ABSTRACT

Augustus Peter Wetter was born in Germany in 1829 and died in Pennsylvania in 1882. He came to Savannah before the Civil War and was one of the wealthiest men in Savannah for a period of time. Augustus P. Wetter was many things; he was a Civil Engineer, a planter, an Alderman for Savannah's first district and Cotton press director, just to name a few. He also held many positions on committees and boards. His life contained many triumphs and tragedies that would indicate a very full and sometimes sad existence.
Augustus Peter Wetter was born in Germany in the town of Ments, in the Duchy of Hesse-Darmstadt in the year 1829.\(^{(1)}\) Although the researcher was unable to pinpoint the year of his arrival in Savannah, (a check of Immigration and Naturalization records and Passenger Lists, yielded no Wetters). He appears in the city in 1856 as a civil engineer under General J.E. Gilmer.\(^{(2)}\)

The researcher first found Augustus P. Wetter in June 1855 as a member of the architectural firm of Messrs. Fay, Shells & Wetter,\(^{(3)}\) when he bid on the construction of the Washington County Court House in Sandersville, Georgia.

Although not the successful bidder, he was hired in May 1856 by the Court to supervise the construction.\(^{(4)}\) Wetter was authorized to draw funds as the architect in charge in December 1856. He appeared then to be working for the firm of J.T. Youngblood & Company.\(^{(5)}\)

The court house stood until sometime in the early or mid 1860's. A new court house was built on the ruins of Wetter's building in 1858. An article in the Central Georgian on March 25, 1868 states ..."The plan that has been adopted is in some respects similar to the one upon which the former building was erected...The building will be erected upon the old foundation and much of the ruins will be made use of."\(^{(6)}\)

Wetter built his own house on 215 So. Broad St. (now called Olgethorpe Ave.) between 1856 and 1861. The railings of the Wetter house became famous and are treasured landmarks today in Savannah. Local legend claims the railings were originally ordered for the State Capital in Milledgeville but were not accepted for the contract. Since the timing overlaps so much, the researcher wonders, if by chance they might have been ordered for the Washington County Court House?

Mr. Wetter married Alberta Cobb Telfair on April 21, 1857 at the German Lutheran Church. The ceremony was performed by the Reverend William Epping. Alberta Telfair was born in 1834 in Savannah and was part of the famous Telfair family (which includes a former Governor) which was one of the wealthiest families in the South. This marriage provided A.P. Wetter with four children: Edward Telfair, Conrad P., Alberta Telfair and Meta A.

The year 1857 is also the year Mr. Wetter joined the Chatham Artillery. Mr. Wetter joined the Dekalb Riflemen, who had become part of the Chatham Artillery 1st regiment as the Independent Volunteer Battalion in 1852.

The next two years for Augustus and his wife Alberta brought forth their two sons: Edward Telfair Wetter was born on January 22, 1858. Conrad P., although no exact date of birth was found by the researcher, was born in the year 1859. Daughters Alberta T. and Meta A.'s birthdays are also unknown. It is known however, that Alberta T. married Horace Gould on November 7, 1883 at St. John's Episcopal Church. It is also known that Meta A. Wetter graduated from the Chatham Academy (high school) on June 30, 1877.(16) She died the following year on September 30, 1878.

In 1859 Mr. Wetter made several important purchases. On May 13, Augustus purchased the 200 acre Sharon plantation, from his mother-in-law, Margaret Telfair. He paid $3,000 for the land, bounded by Louisville Road and the Ogeechee Canal.(17) Just prior to his land deal with his mother-in-law, on May 10, Augustus P. Wetter sold his half in a cotton commission business with partner John C. Fraser to William Brailford of McIntosh County. No fee is indicated. (18)

On September 30, 1859 Mr. Wetter bought a forty-five year old Negro slave (warranted sound) named Peter, from a Mr. William P. Clark for $1,000.(19)

On August 3, 1860, Mr. Wetter purchased 4,795 acres in Bryan County in the Village of Riceborough and the Town of Darien known as Mt. Hope Plantation from Henrietta G. Rodgers (of New Haven, Ct). Mr. Wetter paid a total of $9,000 for this property.(20)

A.P Wetter left for Fort Pulaski on March 14, 1861 to join the Dekalb Riflemen. A detachment of the Republican Blues, under Captain J.W Anderson, left at the same time. (21). Augustus is now listed as a Captain, and is referred to as such on and off, throughout the rest of his life.

Although Mr. Wetter was Captain of the Dekalb Riflemen for a number of years, he was assigned to other duty after their incorporation into a battalion of sharpshooters.(22) The researcher believes Captain Wetter came straight back to the City of Savannah, where he carried on his business.

On November 2nd of the same year, Captain Wetter transfers the Mt. Hope Plantation and a lot (#28) on the corner of Joachim and Farm Streets in Savannah along with twenty-four slaves, to his wife, Mrs. Alberta C.T Wetter. The fee given was $5.00. (23)

The year 1862 held a sad and disturbing incident for the Wetter family. It seems that the body of Mrs. Alberta Wetter's relative, a Mrs. Haig, was stolen from its vault on Sharon Plantation. Neighbors alerted the Wettres on or about Christmas day, that the vault had been forced open and the body, along with a silver plate that had been resting on the coffin, were missing. Captain Wetter, in a letter to the editor of the Savannah Morning News offered a large reward for the conviction of the desecrators. (24) The researcher found no documents that resolved the situation. It seems that the vandals were never found.

A.P Wetter added to his property holdings in November, 1863. This time Mr. Wetter acquired 896 acres known as "Crow Lane" in Bryan County on the Big Popular and Deep Creek swamps. Mr. Wetter paid John W. Anderson $2,100 for this piece of property. (25)

On and off in 1864, Mr. Wetter sold meal for the same rates as city stores (26) and evidently gave some of the money to charity. One day after a particular sale on December 5, the Savannah Morning News acknowledged a $1,000 contribution from Captain A.P Wetter for the benefit of the poor of Macon.
The newspaper stated that A.P. Wetter's "acts of public and private benefaction are well known in this community." (27)

Another facet of A.P. Wetter's benefaction is seen in 1865. He returned to Germany, where he planned to establish agencies for the emigration of Germans to form colonies in, and till the soil of south western Georgia. (28)

1865 was also the year A.P. Wetter was nominated for Alderman to the Democratic ticket for Savannah's First District, which he respectfully declined. (29/30)

In May of 1866, A.P. Wetter was selected for the second panel of the Grand Jury for the present term of court. This honor must have been overshadowed when on July 28, his wife, Alberta, died. Her funeral was held at the Wetter home on the corner of South Broad and West Broad Streets at three P.M. (31)

A.P. Wetter seems to have had a watershed year for his business transactions in 1867. February business transactions looked very favorable for Augustus. On February 2, he acquired a 1/4 part of the lot on the south east section of Map F, Middle Oglethorpe Ward, in exchange for a debt owed by Alexander H. Sadler. The fee was $1.00. Wetter then returns the property to Mr. Sadler in exchange for a mortgage of $275/yr for three years at which time the entire principle was due. (32) The very next day (February 3) The Central Rail Road and the Banking Company of Georgia exchange a tract of land with Wetter called the "Right of Way" and lands on the estate of Margaret Telfair for the fee of $5.00. (33)
Five days later on February 8, Wetter purchases 1,696 acres in Bryan County known as Hickory Hill Plantation, from Isaac D. LaRoche. In the same transaction, he acquires a portion of a plantation known as "Egypt", property of the late Thomas Harden. These lands border on the lands of Mr. Wetter (Mt. Hope Plantation to the Midway River). The fee was $5.00. (34)

In early December, Wetter and twelve other partners, doing business as Cotton Press Company, acquired wharf lot #5, of Eastern Wharves, with 164'.4" on the Savannah River and 270' in depth to the back of Bay Street. The seller was Daniel H. Baldwin of New York. The price for the building, equipment, land, tools, etc. was $52,000. (35)

In December of 1868, A.P Wetter is appointed as a delegate to attend the Agricultural and Emigration convention held in Macon. (36) The researcher realizes that Wetter has an extreme interest in helping other citizens, and tries very hard to help. This desire to help others is exemplified by his undertakings in 1869 and 1870 to help other German immigrants. A.P Wetter appears on the committee to make a report on the advantages of the port of Savannah for the proposed line of steamships to run between the North German Confederation and some port in the South East. (37)

Captain A.P Wetter, as of June, 1870, was the president of the German Immigrant Aid Society. Its purpose was to assist immigrants with counsel, to protect them against imposition, to point out to them available lands, to facilitate their finding employment, to procure food for, and to make arrangements for cheaper means of transportation.\(^{(38)}\)

It is in November, 1870 when A.F. Wetter and seven other men are granted (by the State legislature) a charter for the establishment of The Southern Bank of the State of Georgia. (John Screven, E.C. Anderson, John McMahon, Thomas Arkenwright, T.R. Mills, John Flannery and Eugene Kelley are the other people involved). The authorized capital of the bank will be $5,000,000.\(^{(39)}\) All eight men were appointed directors of said bank by virtue of the charter granted.\(^{(40)}\)

Earlier that year, A.F. Wetter was selected to fill an unexpired term of the Alderman for the First District after Alderman D.T. Scranton died. This time he accepted. Captain Wetter was unanimously elected for the post.\(^{(41)}\) In October A.F. Wetter was elected on the municipal ticket to a term as Alderman for the First District.\(^{(42)}\)

A.F. Wetter was very active in society and business in 1871. In October he was named to the Executive Committee of the Democratic Party of Savannah.\(^{(43)}\) In June he was elected to the Board of Directors of the Industrial Association by the stockholders.\(^{(44)}\) Finally, in July, he is named as the Director of the Tyler Cotton Press Company.\(^{(45)}\)

Augustus stayed politically active for the next year. In 1872 He was again appointed to the Executive Committee of the Democratic Party of Savannah.\(^{(46)}\) He was also named as an alternate to the committee to select delegates to attend the National Democratic Convention in Atlanta.\(^{(47)}\) He was also elected to be the Agent for the Tyler Cotton Press Company. 48

Up until this point in his life, it certainly seems that A.P Wetter was indeed a very influential and rich gentleman. After 1872, though, something goes terribly wrong. The researcher could not find the specific circumstances of the losses that Captain Wetter goes through, although the losses are great. It is likely that the Civil War and its effect on the economic destruction in the south as well as the freeing of the slaves must have had serious impact on a plantation owner. Without help on his land and the impact of the aftermath of the war, it is very likely these factors contributed to his economic collapse.

In 1873 he resigns as Alderman (along with Alderman Brunner) for very undefined reasons. 49 On July 10, 1874, his fifteen year old son Conrad dies. 50 In the year of 1875, everything comes crashing down upon Augustus Peter Wetter.

Many times in 1875 holdings of A.P Wetter were sold before the Courthouse door in Chatham County. On separate occasions in April and May, personal belongings were sold. 51/52. Also in April, Sheriff John T. Ronan was forced to auction off the Tyler Cotton Press Co. 53 Added to this was the loss of a lawsuit by A.P Wetter to William H. Tyson for the amount of $6,925.66 with interest and court costs. 54 He also experienced the loss, through fire, of his barn on Mt. Hope Plantation in Bryan County. 55
Unfortunately for Captain Wetter, his problems with the law would grow in the years after 1875. In both February and March 1876 judgements was rendered against A.P Wetter for rent. These actions culminated in the foreclosure on his mortgage in December 1877. Then on September 30, 1878, his daughter Meta dies at age seventeen.

The year of 1879 saw the loss of A.P. Wetter's "fine furniture"; auctioned off by Blume and Demure. Wetter still tried to keep a semblance of his old life in order. In 1880 he was once again appointed to the Executive Committee of the Democratic Party, just as he would be again in 1882.

By the summer of 1882, Augustus Wetter's failing health forced him to travel to Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, where his son and daughter looked after a critically ill Wetter. He died in Harrisburg Pennsylvania, on September 8,1882. His remains were transported back to Savannah by train and arrived on September 11. Captain Augustus Peter Wetter's funeral was held at the Independent Presbyterian Church at three P.M. on September 12, 1882. The Chatham Artillery was the Honor Guard and fired the customary salute at his internment at Sharon Plantation.

A.P Wetter's son Edward Telfair went on to be appointed by President Cleveland as U.S Consul at Tamatave, Madagascar in 1892. He later became principal at Hernando High School, in Brooksville, Florida. He died of kidney failure in Savannah hospital on June 6, 1908.
Augustus Wetter was indeed, for a short period of time, one of the richest men in Savannah. His acts of generosity to the poor and his willingness to help the German immigrant make him an especially noteworthy character in Savannah's rich history. He was an engineer, architect, planter, merchant, politician, businessman, philanthropist, community leader, and father. A truly varied and successful career for anyone.

Still, some very important facts about his life before he came to Savannah and the complete outline of his tragic financial downfall are still missing. These areas could be studied further to get a more complete overview of the man whose obituary in the Savannah Morning News of September 8, 1882 read in part....

"His genial, social nature attracted around him many warm friends, and the news of his death will occasion unfeigned regret among a large circle." (67)
